Synopsis

Loon Lake lies within the property of a private recreation club; therefore MNR not conducted any work on the lake other than the original lake survey. The club does have a partnership arrangement with Fleming College and students of the fisheries program have worked on this and other lakes on the property. The lake supports small native brook and lake trout populations. However the lake trout habitat is very limited and the brook trout have probably been severely impacted by the introduced smallmouth bass. Because the population is marginal and there is no public use of it, the lake trout population has not been formally designated for management.
